"We're really proud of the new innovations we've made to the ball model," said Guido Bonfiglioli, senior producer at EA Sports. "We were able to capture ball motions from very intense game situations that players might be experiencing on the field and re-use that data to create the ball model that delivers amazing realism, attention to detail and freedom for players to express themselves." FIFA 22 introduces a brand new ball model that will be used for every player and team. The ball (eXtended Model of Behaviour) will be one of the most important things in FIFA 22. The new ball model uses the hyperextended ball physics technology with three major modifications: More movement - Players' physical movements influence the movement of the ball and vice-versa - Players' physical movements influence the movement of the ball and vice-versa Likeness - The new ball replicates the real life behaviour of a football and complements the players' unique on-ball action. - The new ball replicates the real life behaviour of a football and complements the players' unique on-ball action. Frequency - Players' physical movements create significant change in the ball's behaviour, so the new ball model is affected by more complex physical dynamics. Moreover, players will now be able to control the intensity and speed of the ball to create various moments on the pitch. The new ball model also presents more responsive feedback during and after the touch, enabling players to better reproduce the movement of the real ball. FIFA 22 will feature a number of gameplay innovations that are inspired by the style and attributes of the most innovative players in the world, including Ronaldo, Messi, Wayne Rooney, Alexis Sánchez, Neymar, Eden Hazard, Karim Benzema and Alex Sandro. These players will also be showcased in their own key FIFA Ultimate Team (FUT) collectible cards. FIFA Ultimate Team has also been enhanced to allow the creation of team-specific cards and stickers. These cards and stickers will give you the opportunity to customize each stadium to your own taste. Furthermore, FUT will feature a brand new card construction system that will allow players to use any card in the game, regardless of the skin used by the player. In addition, FUT players can be unlocked in the Solo Seasons mode and can be used in
