hernan forged his career on these early records. he was the first dj to incorporate house music into his sets, he selected songs from his youth that he knew would captivate his new audience. he didn't just play the hits though; he would bring in the art house and ibiza to his sets. he was almost too exciting, he changed and developed too quickly for others to keep up. "i think you could say i was born to be a dj," hernan tells fabio g., "it's such a calling for me; it defines me as a person. i didn't do this only to make money or because i thought it would be a good thing to do. i've always been a dj, it's just a natural talent that i can't live without." surprisingly, hernan reflects on a popular culture phenomenon, rave dance music culture, and is reminded of the time when he first played the music in the clubs of buenos aires. this seems to change the course of the song as the music crashes into a percussive sequence that is destined to lose the occupants of the boat due to the sheer pulsation. a timeless treat and an excellent end to a fun, four-hour set. one of the most lauded performers on the global dance music circuit, hernan comes across as an intimate host and above all a passionate advocate for all forms of electronic music. he is one of those rare personalities that put a huge amount of work, sweat, blood, experience and perseverance into the community. hernan is a fully qualified, university educated engineer in audio production, which can be noted in his sets. categorised as a key figure in the uk's drum&bass scene, the ability to absorb vast amounts of information and knowledge into his head makes him the perfect host for such a star-studded evening of music. being a true lover of diverse musical genres, hernan embraces and adores all forms of electronic music from the electronic side of the spectrum to the dub side, down to the more tribal side of drum and bass. a unique blend of techniques and approaches, his sets are anything but boring. always promising, the crowd is always energised and given a rush of adrenaline with each of his sets. his passion for playing and explaining music fills the air with the passion and energy that has helped him break through, and continue to break through, musical barriers around the globe. with a career spanning three decades, hernan cattaneo is a true pioneer in electronic music and a true visionary for its future. it's been a pleasure to sit back and watch him blossom. 5ec8ef588b
